

"The image is a thread of smoke that rises into the air and changes its forms at every moment. It not only follows a logic or a norm but also a whim that always remains an unfathomable mystery."

Welcome to the fantastic world of Luigi M. Verde, where we celebrate a passionate fusion of Art and Science (and even a little programming) in a single creative expression. Luigi was born in Melfi in the suggestive South of Italy, in a distant spring of 1969, when digital art was still a distant and futuristic concept. During his studies in physics, he discovered a deep passion for black and white photography and the fascinating process of developing it in the darkroom.

And so, for over three decades, he has been conducting a very personal quest that brings together things like natural language processing, programming, and the irresistible desire to express himself artistically through photography, digital painting, and art book creation. In order not to remain all alone in the shadows, he actively participated in numerous cultural events both in Italy and abroad.

His intent? Merging the digital world with the importance of gestures and artisanal knowledge in artistic creation. What makes Luigi's works unique are the manual interventions made during the printing phase, which add a more personal touch to each creation. These interventions allow a greater emotional impact to be conveyed which elevates the meaning of the works to a higher level. His true passion is conceptual art where like a detective dealing with philosophical problems and linguistic whims he tries to give shape and conception to a work. Each creation is an enigma to be revealed, a world of profound meanings waiting to be deciphered and told.

In summary, Luigi M. Verde is a visionary artist with an often ironic and informal approach, with one foot firmly rooted in artistic tradition and the other in the digital age, Luigi invites us to explore that enchanting world in which Art and Science they join in a fascinating dance.
